I Took a (F#m) north train all the

(Bm) way to Bowen station

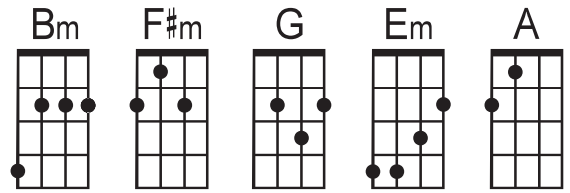

In the (G) Sunday morning light (Bm)

(A) Stepped onto the platform with a

(Em) duffle and a Maton

(G) Not another (A) soul in (Bm) sight

(G) Not another (A) soul in (Bm) sight

He was (Bm) standing by the

(F#m) road on Sunday

(Bm) morning near the station

Must have (G) caught the train last night (Bm)

(A) Pulled up and I asked him what might (Em) be his destination

He said (G) wherever I would (A) take him would be al (Bm) right

Wher (G) ever I was (A) going was al (Bm) right

And you (A) wonder, yes you (Bm) do

Could there (A) ever be a me and (Bm) you

(Bm) We got to (F#m) talking and it (Bm) turned out he'd been working somewhere

(G) Down south on the trains (Bm)

He (A) smelled like New South Wales and he (Em) even tucked his shirt in

(G) But I liked him (A) all the (Bm) same

Yeah I (G) liked him (A) all the (Bm) same

She was (F#m) pretty as the (Bm) pictures hung in hallways

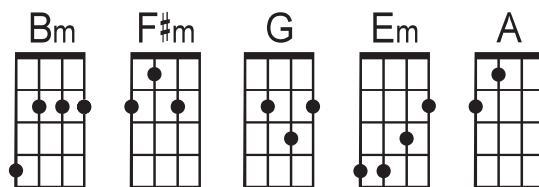

From the (G) mansions from T V (Bm)

(A) I wondered what it was that (Em) made her cross the four lane

(G) And (A) pull up side of (Bm) me

Yeah I (G) wondered (A) why she stopped for (Bm) me.

And you (A) wonder, yes you (Bm) do
 Could there (A) ever be a me and (Bm) you
 And you (A) wonder, yes you (Bm) do

We pulled up in (F#m) Bowen where he
 (Bm) said that he was going

Try to (G) find some place to (Bm) be
 (A) Ain't no way of knowing but some
 (Em) little flame was glowing

(G) Did he think the (A) same as (Bm) me
 Was he (G) thinking the (A) same as (Bm) me | (Bm) |

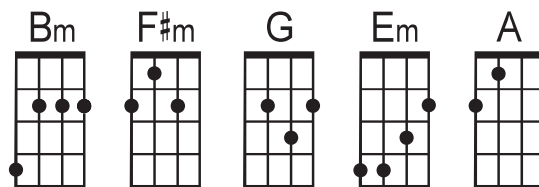

She dropped me off out (F#m) side the pub and (Bm) muttered her goodbyes

Then she (G) paused to let me (Bm) speak

But my (A) silly tongue was tied so I just (Em) closed the door behind

(G) And watched her (A) drive off down the (Bm) street
 She just (G) drove off (A) down the (Bm) street | (Bm) |

And you (A) wonder, yes you (Bm) do
 Could there (A) ever be a me and (Bm) you
